This game is a strange point-and-click adventure where you enter a house in a city where more than one scenario is linked, and you are not aware that the way you are leading yourself is not the only one. This point-and-click adventure is so unique that you cannot find it anywhere else, and even if you found it, you would not be able to play it. You are exploring a house where six owners have lived. On your way you will discover a mystery that will involve other inhabitants and some secret documents. The house has had six different owners, each of whom has left it in a very different condition. Perhaps each owner lived in a different dream world or a different reality, of which they were unaware? Here you can play the Demo of Unusual Findings! Play it in 15 minutes without any installation, then upload your screenshots or record your gameplay on YouTube or Steam so that you can show it to your friends, family, and so on! You can also share this game with people in all the same modes in which the game is played in the Web version (you can share all of your screenshots and recorded gameplay through the Web version).
