* Try Photoshop Elements (www.adobe.com/products/photoshopel/). Photoshop Elements is a scaled-down version of Photoshop. With Elements, you can edit your work and save it as a PSD file that only includes your edits. If you work in a smaller business, or if you want to keep a private collection of your works, Photoshop Elements is a great option. * Try GIMP (www.gimp.org/). GIMP is a completely open-source alternative to Photoshop that's freely available. GIMP and Photoshop are at the same level of functionality. In fact, you can use GIMP with many features enabled in the Express version. * Try Picasa (www.google.com/picasa/). Google's Picasa is a free easy-to-use photo editor that will store your pictures and send them to Google's servers for backup. It doesn't have all the power of Photoshop, but many people find that it's a perfect fit for small projects. * Try Pixlr Editor (www.pixlr.com/editor/). Pixlr Editor is a web-based photo editor that's more powerful than Picasa and has a Twitter-like sharing feature. * Use other tools (www.pexels.com/). Pexels is a website that offers the possibility of a great archive and creative tools for sharing images on the web. * * * # Coming full circle with the web One of the most powerful additions to the photo editing business is the power of the web to reach people for all their needs. Photoshop and GIMP are both open-source tools. This means that they're free to use but require a user to do all the heavy lifting of building a website, uploading to the web, and maintenance. In fact, Photoshop and GIMP are designed to be used as a component of a larger website. Web development has gotten easier with web page builders. The most popular one is Squarespace. This web page builder is a free version of Wordpress that lets you create and publish pages, galleries, and blogs. The web page builder is relatively intuitive, especially for users who are new to web programming. With Squarespace, you can work on a small side project and just as easily scale it up to full-blown functionality. Most page builders start at about $10 per month

Open an Image In this tutorial, I'll be using a screenshot of the Discord game that uses the same images for all their emoticons and avatars. In Photoshop Elements, open an image you've saved to your computer. Depending on the type of image you opened, you may see additional tabs in the top right of the program. • Click the Image tab to open the image. • Click the Open button to open the image file on your computer. 2. Select the Brush In this step, you'll use Photoshop Elements to edit the image. Open the Brush tool, which is a black circle with a white arrow. 3. Start Painting On the bottom side of the Brush, you'll see a white arrow that shows the shape that you can paint. The white arrow acts as a visual guide to help you create a soft-edged shape. Paint the shapes you need. 4. Sharpen the image by pressing the Alt/Option key. Then use the Brush tool to paint over the image to add a soft blur to the edges. Repeat steps 2–4 to add the same blur to each edge of the image. If you're editing a standard image, you can use the Soften Tool, which is located below the other tools. 5. Adjust the Blend Mode Using this tool, you can create effects with color or art images that blend into the image. Open the Blend tool and select a color or art image. Click the marquee tool to select the entire image. Use the Lasso tool to select the image you want to blend with. Using the Blending Options, you can choose the color or art color, color from your background color, and transparency. 6. Create a New Photo Collage In this section, you'll use Photoshop Elements to create a 3D photo collage. Open the Stylize tool, which is a square brush with black and white dots. Q: Git svn clone to github I'm learning GIT and I'd like to clone a repository to Github. I've configured a SSH key, using GitHub. When I go to `ssh://git@github.com/my-user-name/my-repository-name.git` it ask me for a passphrase, which I don't want to enter. I don't know what to do... A: You don't have to enter a passphrase if the following is set: `git config --global http.sslcainfo` And of course, you need to have as the URL for your SSH server, which I assume you have. EDIT: Just found a reference to this in the git-svn man page: `http://sslCAinfo` URL for the SSL CA used for HTTPS-URL authentication. If no URL is specified, the configuration variable `http.sslCAinfo` is used.
