EmbirdPasswordCrack3.rarIn vitro characterization of a murine monoclonal IgG1 antibody directed to bovine factor VIII. In the current study, a monoclonal IgG1 antibody, 3F8, directed against bovine factor VIII (FVIII) was produced and characterized. Initial screening of a monoclonal antibody (MAB) library produced with spleen cells of mice immunized with bovine FVIII identified a representative MAB that bound bovine FVIII in a flow cytometry and enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA). This MAB reacted in immunoblotting with a range of bovine FVIII-related proteins, but not with the respective homologous plasma proteins. Immunoblotting of BRL cells co-expressing human and bovine FVIII-related factors (thrombin complex, TF and FVIII) also indicated recognition of bovine FVIII-related factors by this MAB. B cell lines established by Epstein-Barr virus transformation of peripheral blood mononuclear cells from the 3F8 immunized mouse secreted antibody that reacted in immunoblotting with bovine FVIII and in ELISA to native and recombinant bovine FVIII. This antibody also demonstrated saturable specific binding to FVIII antigen. Additionally, this antibody was able to inhibit both activated partial thromboplastin time (aPTT) and factor VII-induced aPTT in a factor VIII-deficient plasma. Moreover, it was able to prevent the coagulation of normal plasma by rabbit anti-human FVIII. Thus, this MAB appears to recognize the same epitope on bovine FVIII as that recognized by commercial anti-human FVIII.You are here Renovating the room by the pool Renovating the room by the pool If you 6d1f23a050
