That means it's time to put your feet up and enjoy an indulgent seasonal liqueur. Recently, I enjoyed a batch of Deep Ellum's Vin Red aperitif called Pucker Up. It's dark-roasted and earthy, with flavors of dark chocolate and herbs, including red wine, or "red berries," as it's described on the label. Pucker Up Being raised in the south in a family of sugar and spice addicts, I was immediately drawn in by the generous sprinkle of pepper and suggestions of black pepper in the aroma. When tasting, the spice was there, but it wasn't in a bad way. Rather, it had an almost faintly sweet quality to it.

The sweetness, in turn, was more of a dark chocolate quality than the usual sweetness of black pepper. This aperitif is good in its own right but also a solid go-to base for a cocktail. I grabbed my Manhattan, replacing it's classic whiskey with Pucker Up, fresh-squeezed orange juice 6d1f23a050
