As you can see from the space and the number of people, there's no way to make sure everyone is updated when a new update is released. There's no way to "mark" people as "made" and say "Hey, you need to grab this update" - that's not the way this works. The way this works is that the server figures out which players are online. If you play during the same time, you get updates during that same time. If you play 10 minutes after the server is reset, you get updates 10 minutes after the server is reset. If you play 10 minutes after the server is reset and do not connect to any players during that time, you will get updates after the server is reset, but they will be delayed.

For those of you playing on Steam, please try to get updates at the same time. We're using Steam Connect to determine what players are online. If you're sure that you don't mind being out-of-sync a bit, this method can be made to work. It's a bit of a pain, so make sure you have a good block of time to play to make sure you get the update. That being said, in a perfect world, you should be able to download the new version of the mod once and play that version until they fix it. Sorry.
